

Birthday Cake At Orland P. T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland P. T. A., was held last Thursday evening, Feb. 13 in the school auditorium. There was a capacity crowd because the program committee had announced several novel entertainment features as part of the annual birthday celebration of the association.

The children from Miss Snyder's primary room, under the direction of Mrs. Evelyn Smith, assistant principal gave a demonstration of what has been accomplished with their "Toy Orchestra". Several numbers were rendered by the children, all of which were enthusiastically received by the audience and ended up with a spirited and true-to-name performance of the "Tin Pan Parade". The children gave a mighty interesting performance and are to be congratulated as is Mrs. Smith whose painstaking training made it possible.

The grade school pupils put on a playlet which had for its purpose the impressing upon the parent who is apt to be lax in his or her interest in matters pertaining to the school, the vital importance of such interest and the wonderful part that Parent-Teachers Associations are playing in co-ordinating home and school interests.

The executive committee have in accordance with the by-laws, selected a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Tom Davidson, Mrs. Hilda Cox and Professor Holt, who in turn will select the nominees for the offices to be filled at the election which will be held at the March meeting.

This being the annual "Birthday Meeting" the mammoth birthday cake replete with its candles, etc., was the center of attraction. This cake was a huge double decked affair and was furnished by Mrs. Lester Kay and Mrs. Walter Townsend and baked by Mrs. Lawrence Uthe and was a credit to all three.

The candle lighting ceremony was performed by the primary children under the supervision of Mrs. Cooper. Refreshments were served which made an otherwise enjoyable evening, even more enjoyable.

Mrs. Cooper has announced that the play to be given this year will be "A Southern Cinderella". The selection of the cast is not yet completed, but as soon as this is accomplished, rehearsals will commence and the date of the forthcoming performance will be announced in the columns of this paper.

Next meeting, March 13. Election of officers.

CANDIDATES OF COOK CO. CONFER WITH EDITORS

Representative editors and publishers of suburban newspapers from all parts of Cook county met with the Business Men's Republican Organization county town candidates for county board offices at a dinner at the Chicago Athletic Association Friday evening. Unlike the usual political meeting, where a number of candidates indulge in flowery "set speeches", this dinner was in the nature of an open forum with the candidates and editors exchanging views and receiving each other's ideas regarding county affairs.

County town commissioner candidates attending the dinner included Axel Lonnquist of Wilmette; candidate for president of the county board; Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber, of Winnetka; Dr. Thomas E. Roberts of Oak Park, and Charles B. Miller of Maywood. The other suburban town candidate on the ticket, Daniel J. Brumley, Chief Engineer, Illinois Central, was called out of town on business and was unable to attend.

A motion picture giving some high lights of present irregular and expensive conditions in Cook county government was shown. In the discussion that followed, with all candidates and newspaper men taking part, a decided desire for independent and non-factional government in county affairs was clearly indicated. The suburban editors upheld their traditional reputation for independent political reasoning and writing.

Mr. Lonnquist made the following luminating address:

P. T. A. Dance At Orland A Success

The second dance sponsored by the Orland P. T. A. was held in the school auditorium on Friday evening, Feb. 14. As with the previous dance, everything moved with a smoothness and precision that was ideal. The floor was in good shape, the temperature of the hall just right, the music excellent and the crowd was just the right size, and in right humor to make for an enjoyable evening. Johnny Blue and his "Shades of Blue" orchestra provided the music and when it comes to mixing dreamy waltzes with music that is "HOT" spelled in all capital letters, they are the boys that can do it. Mrs. Harry Melchor again was the generalissimo that arranged and supervised all.

What's The Joke?

Someone tried to pull a swift little joke when they left a package containing four radio batteries with a card inside the package reading, "Keep your nose out of here" in a snow bank across the street from the editor's home in Mokena. How the batteries are connected with the joke is rather vague.

Pilings Sag; Bridge Endangered

The Rock Island section men at Mokena were called out on an emergency case Sunday night when the engineer of a train which had just run thru Mokena reported that the track across the subway east of Mokena on Route 51 was sagging. The section men found that some of the piling had settled, causing the track to sag. After a few hours work the trouble was repaired.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

—By—
TRUDIE NOEHRING SWISHER

"TO A ROSE"

Soft as the whispering breezes come,
Over the dale and dell,
Night-time spread her purple robes
And silvery moon-beams fell.
And as I gazed in wondrous dream,
From earth's bejeweled crown,
Mid rarest setting, rich agleam,
God sent a diamond down.
It fell to earth, I went away,
And came in the dawning there,
To find my star from the crown
Of night,
A rose in my garden fair.

—Orrin Alden DeMass.

One of the most interesting affairs of its kind ever given in Tinley Park, was the elaborate Valentine party sponsored by the Garden Club, for the members of their first unit, ROSE CHAPTER. This was held in the spacious basement of the Wm. Funk residence, which had been converted into a sylvan glade for the occasion. Descending the stairs, one stood in the midst of a beautiful garden, in the center of which grew a rose-bush, quite covered with gorgeous red roses. Along the margin of the garden stretched a forest of firs and evergreens. In one corner was a picturesque rock garden. Tall pines towered around. A merry little bird sang a roundelay. Rays of sunshine pierced thru the window and fell onto a deep flower bordered pool in the depths of which darted pretty goldfish. There was sunshine and shadow. Here was found true poetry in nature. Our President, Mrs. R. J. Hug opened the afternoon activities with a short and impressive address of welcome, followed by a few words from Mrs. W. B. Combs, organizer of the Tinley Park Garden Club, and President of Rose Chapter. We next heard from Mrs. W. Funk, our past president. The afternoon was then turned over to our program chairman, Mrs. E. Anderson, who had arranged for many interesting games, and a dialogue which was given by Mrs. H. Anderson, and Mrs. J. Swisher. Delicious refresh-

Sen. Huebsch Will Speak At Tinley On Taxation

Orland Fish Dealer Doing Rushing Business

Orland Park has a new business enterprise by way of a fish market managed by Marvin Young who is a real fish specialist. He handles a select line of fresh fish for which he has established quite a market, not only in Orland, but neighboring towns as well. He is a hustler and delivers his orders promptly by auto. Mr. Young says he takes orders for all kinds of fish and also for shrimp and crabs. When you want fish just call Orland 60-R and Mr. Young will be right on the job.

TINLEY LEGION VERY ACTIVE

The business and social meeting of the Tinley Park Post No. 615 on Monday, February 17 brought out the largest attendance in the history of the local Post. Plans were made for a number of coming events. On Saturday, Feb. 22nd the members with their families and friends will enjoy a party, the music to be furnished by the famous Player's Orchestra of Chicago. Committees were appointed to function at the Big dance at Saenger hall, March 1. This Post will participate actively in a statewide roundup for new members from Feb. 15 to Mar. 1. Altho the Post has reached and passed its quota of 35 members for 1930, the District Commander has asked the Tinley Park Post to secure 5 more new members during the drive.

The next meeting of the 4th District is announced for Feb. 27th at Beverly Hills Post. The 4th District is the largest in Cook County, having 27 Posts. It's territory comprises the greater part of Chicago, south of 12th street and west of Ashland ave., and the townships of Palos, Lemont, Worth, Orland, Rich Bremen, Bloom, Thornton, and Calumet.

On Sunday, Feb. 23, the Tinley Park Post will pay a visit to the Chicago Tribune 40 and 8 Convalescent Camp at Orland. A group of ladies from the 4th District of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be the guests. The ladies will serve refreshments to the patients and will make plans to continue doing service work at the Camp. Tinley Park Post is very fortunate in not having to do any service work among its own members so has "adopted" the boys at Orland.

New members of the Post are Basil A. Couch and Thatcher F. Davis.

The Post renews its invitation to any ex-service men in the community to attend the meetings. Perhaps the Post thru its Service Officer can aid a veteran who has any problems concerned with his service. Help of this nature will gladly be extended, whether or not the veteran is a member of any Post.

BETTER GOVERNMENT CANDIDATES TO SPEAK AT TINLEY PARK MAR. 4

Bremen township is vitally interested in good government and thru the Better Government Association of Chicago arrangements have been made to hold a real stirring mass meeting at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park on the evening of March 4th commencing at eight o'clock to which every man and woman in the township is invited.

Axel Lonnquist, candidate for the office of president of the Cook County Board on the Business Men's Organization ticket will be one of the chief speakers. Moving pictures will be shown of some of the rotten conditions existing in the County of Cook.

The Business Men's Republican Organization is composed of a group of public-spirited citizens who believe that the only solution of the problem in county affairs is to elect a group of capable and efficient men and women who shall serve as a Board of County Commissioners and who will give Cook County a business administration of county affairs, thereby reducing the tax burden of the individual, raising the moral tone of the community, and restoring confidence in the business integrity of Chicago.

The Board of County Commissioners now serving in that capacity and representing all the major political factions of this community has been guilty of bringing the county to bankruptcy and dishonor by graft, waste and inefficiency.

The people of this community should refuse to return to office any man who is serving on the present Board, all of whom, if they have not profited equally by the deals put over by the Board of County Commissioners, have at least NOT VOTED AGAINST THEM, and have permitted such frauds. These men should not be given the opportunity to perpetuate this condition for the next four years.

If you want to see good government restored in Cook County, attend this meeting and see how it is going to be accomplished.

Orland Couple Married 55 Years; Celebrate Event

A very pleasant time was had on Monday evening, February 17 when about twenty relatives and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sayers of Orland on the occasion of their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary at the home on Wolf Road. Games were played after which delicious refreshments were served.

The guest list was as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper and son, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sayers, Mrs. Katherine Brandau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers and son Earl and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Creer and sons Owen and Clarence. As the guests departed after a most enjoyable evening, they wished the honored couple many more years of health and happiness and wedded bliss. Mr. and Mrs. Sayers are hale and hearty.

FILES PETITION

Another candidate has filed his petition on the Republican ticket in Frankfort township the past week. John F. Schultz of Mokena has just filed his petition for the office of school trustee. Emil P. Krapp, the outgoing school trustee did not want to enter the race for re-election.

John Frisch also of Mokena it is

Frank Wheeler In Race Again

Frank W. Wheeler, is a candidate for re-nomination and re-election to the office of Probate Clerk of Will County. Mr. Wheeler has no opposition in his race. Here is what the Joliet Masonic News says of Mr. Wheeler:

One of the men of Masonry in Joliet who needs no introduction to any member of Matteson Lodge or possibly any Joliet Mason, is Frank W. Wheeler, Secretary of Matteson Lodge. His pleasant and cheerful personality and his desire to be of service makes him the ideal man for his job.

It was away back in 1896 on the 10th of March that Bro. Wheeler was made a Mason. His first interest and efforts in Masonry were rewarded by his promotion thru the chairs and in 1902 he was elected Worshipful Master of Matteson Lodge. His success as Master earned him re-election to that office in 1903. At the annual election in 1916 Bro. Wheeler was elected Secretary and since then has been re-elected year after year. It is with surprising accuracy that Bro. Wheeler can remember faces and names of members—some of whom he may not have seen in years. A visit to Matteson Lodge without seeing Bro. Wheeler is not a complete visit.

Bro. Wheeler has been a busy man fraternally as this list will testify, being a member of Matteson Lodge No. 175 A. F. & A. M.; Joliet Chapter, No. 27, R. A. M.; Joliet Commandery, No. 4, K. T.; Masonic Veteran Association; Ansar Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; Joliet Lodge No. 296 B. P. O. E.; Paul Revere Lodge No. 317 K. of P.; Aazaz Temple No. 274; Joliet Lodge No. 300, L. O. O. M.; Low Twelve Club Kiwanis Club of Joliet; Joliet Rival's Club; Joliet Speed Boys Club; Irving Athletic Club; Garnsey Camp No. 43, Sons of Union Veterans; Will County Chapter Isaac Walton League.

Frank W. Wheeler has also been a public figure for many years. In 1892 he became connected with the staff of the Penal Institution. In 1918 he became deputy Probate Clerk and performed the task most carefully and was successful again as Probate Clerk. He will undoubtedly again be a candidate for re-election and undoubtedly will also serve Matteson Lodge for very many years to come.

understood may file on the Republican ticket for the office of constable.

CODFISH WAYS

When one can think of nothing else for luncheon or dinner a box of firm white salted codfish is the answer. The chowder which has been given in these columns so many times is the dish par excellence. Here it goes again, for there are always a few who haven't tried it:

Codfish Chowder.—Soak a half pound of codfish in water for a few minutes, then simmer for ten. Drain and flake into good sized pieces—say a mouthful size. Put to cook a cupful of finely cut salt pork cut into fourth inch cubes; when the pork cubes are well browned add three onions sliced, stir and cook for a few minutes in the hot fat, then add one-half dozen medium sized potatoes cut into small slices, cover with boiling water—a quart will be plenty. Cook until the vegetables are well cooked, then add the codfish and one quart of fresh milk; bring to the boiling point, add more seasoning if needed and serve piping hot with a milk cracker or two softened in boiling water for each bowl of the chowder.

Codfish Creole.—Cook one green pepper and one onion, both minced in two tablespoonfuls of bacon or three tablespoonfuls of butter, add one tablespoonful of pimento chopped, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, three-fourths cupful of clam broth, one cupful of hot milk and one-eighth teaspoonful of soda. Add two cupfuls of flaked codfish and cook until well heated through. Serve hot with a border of seasoned hot rice.

Dutch Cod.—Take two tablespoonfuls of diced bacon, cook five minutes, add one-fourth cupful of hot water, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, four cupfuls of chopped cabbage, cook until tender, then add two cupfuls of flaked fish and serve very hot on a platter garnished with toast points and bacon curls.

Scalloped Codfish With Tomato.—Take one can of tomato, two cupfuls of cooked spaghetti, one minced onion, one-half cupful of flaked cod, one-half cupful of crumbs. Add such seasoning as is needed to the tomato and onion. In a buttered casserole place a layer of spaghetti and a layer of fish; cover with a layer of the tomato. Sprinkle the buttered crumbs over the top and bake fifteen minutes.

GARNISHMENT

The garnishing of foods is an art that needs to be studied as carefully as one builds a menu or balances a meal. Garnishes not only enhance the food value of dishes as to flavor and color, but they increase the appetite, hence make food more digestible. The sense of sight is a large aid toward digestion, as food which appeals to the eye, usually satisfies the appetite.

A dainty open sandwich, so garnished that it looks like a flower or a French pastry, may make but a mouthful, yet it satisfies both the artistic and the gustatory sense.

There is no limit to the garnishing of sandwiches, salads or desserts. The sauces used for meat or fish not only add flavor but brighten a dull dish with color.

Circles of pineapple broiled with lamb or ham and basted with the juices make most tasty a dish of either meat. A spoonful of snappy tart jelly placed in the center of the pineapple ring adds both to its appearance and flavor.

Mint so well liked as a sauce with lamb may be served as a jelly and served on slices of orange baked with the roast. Place the roast in the center of a hot platter, arrange the roasted orange slices around it and top with a cube of the green mint jelly.

Curls of bacon also add to a lamb dish, sprigs of fresh crisp watercress alternating with the bacon around the roast or chops.

When serving sliced chicken breast as a luncheon dish alternate the chicken with thin slices of pink ham and garnish with parsley and cubes of currant jelly.

Boiled or stewed beef with horseradish sauce is one that is too common to mention. Roast beef with spiced raisins, chopped tomato pickle, pepper hash, cole slaw or mustard pickle, with the countless bottled sauces from which to draw, is a very versatile meat dish.

Ham cooked in grapejuice, cider or ginger ale and served with the roasted orange slices, makes a delectable dish. Pineapple seems to go well with ham either as a garnish or as a salad. The fresh fruit is not sweetened, making it more palatable with ham or pork.

As for desserts, the housewife has many things at her command for garnishing. Chocolate, coconut, bottled cherries, ginger and nuts.

FLATTERING BRIMS IN NEW HATS; PRINCESS SILHOUETTE POPULAR

HEAR the glad tidings, ye who have long suffered the unbecomingness of the brimless chapeau—brims are "in" again! To be sure, southern resort millinery has already conveyed the message of brims to the world of fashion, but the news bears repeating—brims are "in" again!

The illustration might well be captioned "a study in brims," for it presents diverse types which are significant of that which now is and is to be in way of brimmed chapeaux. A theme which will be played "with va-color, weave, contour and style details, its sophistication is very apparent.

Beige printed crepe is the chosen fabric for this dress. This is one of the very new prints which gives such a conservative tweedlike and a street-like appearance rather than a boldly patterned effect. Note how the designer has contrived to subtly gain fullness for the skirt, maintaining a fitted princess effect for the top. Then, too, the way the hemline drops ever so gradually toward the back, riations" by the milliner for spring and summer is the ever youthful and flattering cloche. An outstanding type is the cloche with the ripple brim, two versions of which are shown at the top of this group to the left. There is another little cloche in this collection to which we would like to call your attention. It is sketched to the left in the third row below. Note its plaited sides and observe also that it tilts up just enough to reveal the forehead, which is a characteristic of the majority of 1930 cloches—to be brow revealing.

A flower posed under the brim, next to the face (see the sketch to the right at the top), is one of the "sweetly feminine" touches in promise for the near future.

The frilled brim, a suggestion of which is given by the hat to the left in the second row, is down on the list of the new silhouettes. Belting ribbon, taffeta faille and handkerchief felt are worked in this way.

Next to the frilled brim is a dashing off-the-face type, often reproduced in satin, and just as often in some one or other of the voguish linenlike straws.

Brim of lace straw are a smart new item, the hat to the right of the off-also the fact of the hemline being longer but not too long, evidences the voguishness of this frock. Dark brown kid pumps and a dark brown hat contribute an effective note in the color scheme.

An outstanding style detail in this costume is the scarf which is related in color and texture to the dress. It is not a separate scarf bought casually without reference to an ensemble theme. In reality, it is the latest thing in scarf treatments, in that it is made of the crepe of the dress, however in a darker brown. This scarf's special claim to swank is its gay colored striped bordering. The cuffs of the frock are made of the same bordering.

Spring fabric showings place spethe-face model just described, being a charming exponent.

Semitransparent brims, worked with maline or sheer crin, together with felt, fabric, or straw as per the cunning poke bonnet centered below, offer new and novel treatments.

Supple linenlike straw bodies manipulated like felt are especially stressed in all millinery collections. The model to the right, next to the last sketch, illustrates the idea.

The final brim displays a unique shirred effect, for both shirring and pin tucks play an important part in fabric or felt manipulation.

Latest in Street Frocks.

To be fashioned along extremely simple lines is the latest chic for street frocks. For these one-piece utility and travel models the princess silhouette is playing up simplicity to a compelling degree of smartness.

The "lines" of the dress pictured are ultra-modish. While the general impression of this frock is that of utmost simplicity, in final analysis of cial emphasis on both bordered silks and bordered lightweight woolsens. To the stylist these very colorful borderings are proving an incentive to create very interesting and very designful costumes. Not only daytime dresses exploit borders, but beach costumes and the costume blouse are made of fancifully bordered materials.

An outcome of this flair for gaily bordered effects, is the clever ensemble sets consisting of hat, scarf and handbag made of novel woven worsteds which flaunt striking borders.

Lesson for February 23

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 9:35-11:1. GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore, the Lord of the harvest that He send forth laborers into His harvest.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Helpers at Work.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Helpers at Work.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Helping to Win the World for Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Recruiting Christian workers.

1. The Plenteous Harvest (9:35-38).

1. Christ's compassion (v. 36).

As He went on His rounds preaching the gospel of the kingdom, He saw the multitude as sheep having no shepherd.

2. A plenteous harvest and the few laborers (v. 37).

He saw the whole needy world as a ripened field of grain ready to be harvested, with but few who were willing to labor in the harvest field.

3. Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth laborers into His harvest (v. 38).

II. The Twelve Sent Forth (ch. 10).

The sending forth of the twelve shows the methods adopted by Jesus Christ in the propagation of the kingdom. It should be clearly borne in mind that this chapter does not outline the policy of the missionary endeavor in this age. In order to show the dispensational aspects of the lesson, the following divisions of the chapter are suggested:

1. Instructions bearing immediately upon the Apostles' work to the death of Christ (vv. 1-15).

In strictness of interpretation these teachings cannot be applied to any later period.

(1) The ministers chosen (vv. 1-4).

These twelve humble men were chosen and commissioned to carry on the work of the propagation of the kingdom. These twelve stood in a peculiar relation to Israel. (2) The sphere of their mission (vv. 5, 6). They were only to go to Jews. They had no message for Gentiles, or even Samaritans. After Pentecost this sphere was widened (Luke 24:46-49; Acts 1:8). No such restriction obtains with reference to ministers today. The middle wall of partition was broken down by the death of Christ. (3) Their message (v. 7). By "the kingdom of heaven is at hand" is meant the promised kingdom of Israel was at hand; that Jesus Christ, the promised king, was present and ready to set up His kingdom. After the church is translated, the same message will be taken up for a brief time by the believing remnant (See Acts 15:13-18; Rom. 11 and Rev. 7).

(4) The supernatural authentication of their mission (v. 8). They were clothed with power to work miracles. These wonderful works were really done by the twelve. (5) Their maintenance (vv. 9, 10). They were to make no provision for their support, but to depend wholly upon the Lord who sent them. Since they had received the message and power gratuitously, they were to give it out in the same way. (6) Responsibilities of those to whom the message was delivered (vv. 11-15). If the people would not receive them or hear their message, they were to turn from them and pronounce judgment upon them.

2. Instructions concerning testimony from Pentecost onward (vv. 16-23).

After Pentecost, testimony for Christ would be fraught with great danger. Both Jews and Gentiles would assail the messengers with the most bitter persecutions. They were scourged in the synagogues before heathen magistrates. Instead of bringing peace to the homes, they brought divisions of the fiercest kind among families. In their defense they were to rely upon the Holy Spirit to aid them. These conditions were literally fulfilled in the period from Pentecost to the destruction of Jerusalem. Since the fall of Jerusalem, no one has ever been scourged in a synagogue. Verse 23 seems to carry the work forward to the time of the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom in the tribulation time. The Lord's coming then is so speedy, that their testimony is cut short.

3. The teaching applicable in all ages (vv. 24-42).

The disciple has the position of oneness with the master. He is courageously to declare the whole counsel of God, though most violently opposed. Though the testimony result in the most bitter opposition, the messenger should not be surprised or discouraged, for so completely is the Lord identified with His disciples that He accepts treatment of them as treatment of Himself.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

In love, you are never allowed to permit your feelings to relax. It is such a tyrannical taskmaster.

FINDS STATE BANKS WELL SUPERVISED

Bankers Body Sees Less Politics in Banking Departments With Better Facilities in the Hands of the Responsible Officials.

A survey of state banking departments by the State Bank Division, American Bankers Association, discloses a distinct tendency the past five years to take bank supervision out of politics, to increase the discretionary powers of bank commissioners, to lengthen their terms of office, to supply them with adequate forces of qualified examiners and to relieve banking departments of duties foreign to banking, says a recent statement issued by the association.

"We have consistently urged that the office of bank commissioner be a free from partisan politics as the judiciary itself and that it be divorced from all other functions of state government," the statement says. "Further, that his term of office be made more secure and lasting, with sufficient salary and power granted to attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability, courage, resourcefulness and successful banking experience.

"Five years ago the first survey of state banking departments by the division demonstrated the need for improvements. On the basis of data now in hand it is evident that, through the revision of statutes in many states, rapid steps are being taken in the right direction. One by one the states are coming to recognize the primary importance of strong, competent banking departments. The demand for increasing the effectiveness of banking departments is beginning to be met."

How Bank Commissioners Are Chosen

The office of bank commissioner is now operated as an independent department of state government in thirty-four states, the bankers find. In two states the bank commissioner is elected at general elections; in one he is appointed from eligible lists of the civil service and in another, he is selected by the banks. In one state the bankers' association elects a list of five names from which the governor appoints one as superintendent of banks; in another he is appointed by the State Corporation Commission and in another by the State Banking Board.

"Terms of office of bank commissioners have been lengthened in several states during the last five years," the report says. "In 28 states the term is four years, in one, five years, and in three it is six years and in some the term is indefinite. A short term is condemned on the grounds that the commissioner has insufficient time to become thoroughly conversant with his field work. A longer term permits his rendering useful service through capitalizing his experience. Five years ago the average length of service was less than three years, while now it has risen to five years.

Higher Standards Required

"Signs of an awakening to the necessity of making successful banking experience a qualification for bank commissioner are evident. While eleven states report no banking experience necessary, the majority require experience of this sort, ranging from two to five years. Twelve states now have banking boards, with powers ranging from acting in an advisory capacity to full power over all state banks to issue and reject charters.

"A healthy sign is the number of reports which disclose that the commissioners have full power to appoint bank examiners or that these appointments are made from civil service lists. This power is now granted to the commissioner by twenty-seven states. Three require that selection be from civil service lists. Complaints are still made in a few states of political pressure in the appointment of examiners, but the contrary seems to be true in a growing number of states. The most capable commissioner cannot successfully perform his duties unless he is able to command the services of efficient, honest examiners. The safety of depositors is dependent on their work, and their appointment, fitness and compensation are highly important. The number of examiners has increased 25 per cent in the last five years."

BANKERS TO HOLD GREAT CONVENTION

Cleveland, Ohio, has been designated for the 1930 annual convention of the American Bankers Association. This organization, which numbers about 20,000 banks with $65,000,000,000 in assets, is annually the nation's most important financial event. The attendance ranges between five and ten thousand.

Cleveland is especially significant in the history of the Association's educational traditions since it was in this city, when the organization last met there in the year 1899, that the original resolution was presented looking to the formation of an educational section. This subsequently resulted in the American Institute of Banking in which are now enrolled 35,000 bank men and women engaged in the study of the technical and scientific phases of the business.

BANKERS REPORT DROP IN SAVINGS

Lure of Stock Market Partly to Blame, but Slackened Speculation Expected to Bring Return to Thrift.

The first recession in the nation's savings account in banks in the twenty years during which records in this field have been kept by the American Bankers Association was disclosed for last year in the recent annual compilation prepared by its Savings Bank Division. The shrinkage amounted to over $195,000,000, on the basis of figures for the year ending June 29, 1929, whereas a year earlier the reported increase was over $2,300,000,000, the largest ever recorded. The number of savings depositors also decreased during the year covered by more than 500,000 accounts. The lure of the stock market and affiliated activities are cited as part of the explanation for these changes.

The association's statement says that savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States on June 29, 1929, stood at $28,217,656,000. The recession in savings, it declares, indicates a fundamental change in the savings situation, irrespective of whether it is temporary or not.

How Savings Used to Grow

"In 1926 savings deposits increased $1,562,000,000, in 1927 almost $1,400,000,000 and in 1928 over $2,300,000,000," it says. "It appears now that some influences in one year have taken the gain that might reasonably have been expected in savings deposits for 1929 and lowered them from the high mark of the preceding year. This recession is not one coming as a result of drouth, famine, unemployment or conditions outside of the United States.

"A year ago it was stated: 'The year closing June 30, 1928, registered the largest gain in savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States ever recorded in the history of this country.' What a difference one year makes! From a gain of more than 2 1/4 billions of dollars in savings deposits to a loss of almost 200 millions!

"The loss in savings deposits is reflected also in the loss of savings depositors. The year 1929 showed a total of 52,664,127 depositors, against 53,188,348 for 1928, a loss of 524,221.

"Industrial production was much higher last year than the preceding year. Factory payrolls were considerably greater. In production, employment and trade, advances were made over the preceding year. In the farm areas the improvement noted for 1928 did not recede in 1929 and the livestock industry in all its branches was prosperous.

The Causes of the Drop

"The causes of the recession are possibly multiple. There is scarcely any reason to doubt that one of the important factors draining away savings and decreasing depositors has been the lure of profits to be made in stocks. For a number of years the people have been regaled with stories of profits made in stocks in all types of companies. During the last few years there has been a specious philosophy preached that panics such as formerly occurred were no longer possible.

"If it was the lure of profits in stocks which caused the recession in savings, then a factor in future savings will be the success attendant upon this venture of savings depositors in stocks. If the experiment did not prove generally successful, then another year will doubtless witness an increase in savings deposits as well as in savings depositors."

HELPING YOUNG FOLK TO BECOME BANKERS

Through the American Institute of Banking, which is the American Bankers Association's educational section, the banking profession is educating 35,000 bank men and women in the technical and scientific departments of their work. These students are enabled by this institute, which is entirely non-commercial in its operations, to obtain a grasp of the finer points of banking without interrupting their employment or interfering with their earnings, in their bank jobs.

The courses given, including banking economics and law and bank administration in all the departments, have been worked out under the direction of senior college educators and the lectures are always given by practical men, such as lawyers in the legal courses, experts in banking operations and college professors in the economics courses. There are chapters with meeting rooms in over 200 cities and also a number of smaller study groups are fostered with correspondence aid.

It has been said that the A. I. B., as it is familiarly known throughout the banking field, is the greatest adult educational organization in the world and is supplying the banking business with the largest supply of trained workers each year that any comparable line of business is receiving. The organization holds an annual convention attended by hundreds of young bank workers as well as senior bank officers actively interested in furthering the institute's educational work, at which numerous technical subjects of practical banking application are presented and discussed. This year's convention will be held at Denver, Colorado, June 16 to 20.

"With a firm and steadfast purpose, we have for over a year been working on a slate and program, preparing to run a full ticket of business men and women for the County Board, on a platform which concisely means a business administration of the affairs of Cook County," said Axel Lonnquist, head of the Business Men's Republican organization ticket, today.

"Every candidate has signed the platform and is qualified to translate its meaning into action. Their election will mean restoration of confidence in our local government.

"No one who has had anything to do with this movement, nor any of the candidates, have been motivated by anything but a genuine desire to serve the people at a time of emergency.

"We will not allow the great issue to be sidetracked. Public office shall not be used by political factions to put on an army of payrollers for the benefit of political henchmen, whatever may be their stripe. We stand for simplification of governmental agencies. We advocate consolidation of overlapping tax bodies and coordination of public service, eliminating all unnecessary payrollers and making for efficiency in public offices throughout Cook County. It is obvious therefore that public opinion will see that politicians do not becloud the issues of this movement, made so necessary by selfishness and old line ideas of political bosses. We will present the real issues throughout the campaign only on their merit. Our program offers the only sound relief for the taxpayer who otherwise faces, in many instances, practical confiscation of his real property.

"We will restore free and open bidding in all public works and in the purchase of materials and supplies for public use. This will automatically immeasurably reduce costs to the County in all its purchases.

"We advocate control of billboards along public highways and will give leadership in a movement for their gradual elimination. We will also give leadership in a movement for beautifying the highways by planting along the roads trees and plants indigenous to Illinois.

"We advocate the widening of all important arterial highways and the completion of any old projects before appropriating money for new or contemplated routes.

"We propose that the curse of selfish interest be forever banned from public works. We have in our group one of the most eminent civil engineers of this part of the country. In our group are also two outstanding public accountants who will survey and revise the system whereby payrolling has flourished and replace it with efficiency and courtesy on the part of men who need fear no political domination. Our candidates offer better service to the public coupled with integrity and interest in the public weal.

"We have men in our group thoroughly posted on land values and the administration of real property. We oppose the old system whereby a nominal sum was named in a deed and escrows created for sinister purposes in the purchase of forest preserve lands. We propose that all purchases shall specify the amount of money the county pays for the land and that this be made a part of the record.

"We propose that there shall be no secret sessions nor political palaver where the expenditure of public moneys is contemplated or involved.

"We propose to use the latent legal powers of the County Board for the benefit of the taxpayers; to administer these powers so that corrupt politicians no longer can fasten their tentacles into the public treasury.

"We propose that the State's Attorney's office shall be given the cooperation which he says he needs to enable him to end racketeering, thereby unfettering honest business in the City and County."

50,000,000 FRENCHMEN CAN'T BE WRONG

Genevieve Tobin, piquant and charming stage star, known to thousands of playgoers for her delightful impersonations in reigning dramatic successes of recent years and now heading one of the outstanding musical comedy successes on Broadway has a natural flair for the domestic arts. A born cook, Miss Tobin often shows her culinary prowess in entertaining her friends during leisure hours. One of her favorite dishes is Beauty Salad. In preparing it Miss Tobin dissolves a package of raspberry gelatin in 2 cups of boiling water, and adds ¼ teaspoon of salt. She then turns the mixture into individual molds, filling them ¾ full, and chills them. Two bananas are diced and sprinkled with 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. When the gelatin mixture is firm a layer of bananas is arranged on it and the whole sprinkled with ½ cup of walnut meats, finely cut. Then another layer of the gelatin mixture is added and the whole chilled. When firm, Miss Tobin fills the mold with the remaining gelatin mixture and chills until firm. She unmolds it on lettuce and garnishes with mayonnaise. This makes a pretty dish for eight persons. As she is often pressed for time, the stage star has a short cut method of chilling the gelatin. She adds to a package of flavored gelatin 1 cup of boiling water and after the gelatin has become completely dissolved, adds a cupful of cracked ice. This method reduces the proportion of water to gelatin, and causes the mixture to congeal in one hour instead of the usual two to three hours. Gelatin made in this way, she says, should be eaten as soon as ready for the table. If it is allowed to stand it becomes tough and rubbery. (Herbert Photos, New York.)

Another Conoco

Western Program

An ancient Indian legend which purports to tell the story of the discovery by the Indians of the famous Carlsbad Cavern, New Mexico's wonder-spot and shrine of motor tourist, forms the background for the radio playlet of the Conoco Adventures to be heard Thursday from 10 to 10:30 p. m., Central Time, over the N. B. C. network.

The legend is a fanciful and beautiful tale of how Ni-hai, son of tribal chieftain, pursuing a mysterious and beautiful Indian maiden whom he spied playing about the entrance to the celebrated natural cavern, 25 times as large as the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, found the Carlsbad Cavern and revealed its entrance to his tribe.

Throughout the action of the playlet, a characteristic musical background of the soft, minor chords of Indian melody, especially arranged for the broadcast is provided by the Conoco orchestra.

The program is one of a series reproduced each Thursday night, designed to familiarize the American motoring public with some of the historical background of the scenic beauty spots of the great Western territory served by the Conoco Oil Company, and may be heard over W. L. S., Chicago.

Emmerson told the officials present that by midsummer the hundreds of mental patients who in recent months have been forced to sleep on floors will have been provided with quarters, and, if construction proceeds as rapidly as expected, he continued, the wards will have been thinned out and there will be a sufficient number of extra beds to take care of the normal increase of the biennium.

COLOR IMPORTANT FACTOR IN FRUIT

Hue May Vary From Faint Stripes to Deep Solid Red.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Color has been found to be the most important single quality factor in the sale of American fruit, according to F. G. Robb of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, citing the results of twelve years of farm products inspection service by the federal bureau. Other quality factors include size, maturity, and defects due to insect injury, disease, improper packing and rough handling.

Although there has been a marked improvement in recent years in the quality and condition of American fruits on domestic markets, there is still too large a quantity of poor products which have a depressing effect on the general level of fruit prices, Mr. Robb says. The poor quality and condition of this fruit is the result of inefficiency in growing, harvesting, packing and shipping.

"Color," Mr. Robb declares, "is a difficult factor to judge. In a variety of apples like the Jonathan, for example, the U. S. No. 1 grade calls for 25 per cent of good color. The color on the fruit may vary from faint stripes to deep solid red; it may be scattered all over the surface or be concentrated on one cheek. When the apples are passing rapidly in front of the sorters it is likely that an occasional under-colored apple will get by or be misjudged, but there is a grade tolerance to take care of such errors. However, when the inspector finds 20, 25 or 30 per cent of fruit which shows practically no color in some barrels while others show practically no under-colored fruit, it cannot be excused as misjudgment or border line cases. It shows careless packing house management. Under-colored apples cannot be forced on the market at No. 1 prices."

"Inspectors frequently find the same evidence of carelessness in sizing of fruit as in judging color. Sizing can be done satisfactorily only by machinery. The most common condition defects in apples found by our inspectors are over-maturity, decay, scald, and freezing injury. Over-maturity may result from allowing the fruit to remain too long on the trees, or from improper storage, or transportation temperatures."

"Blue mold rot is the most common type of decay. It results from punctures, bruises, or other skin breaks. The great variation in percentages of this decay in different lots in the latter part of the season shows the difference between proper and improper handling methods. At this time of year there is also a wide variation in the extent of damage from scald. Oil wraps in boxes and shredded oil paper in barrels and baskets prevent this condition, but the paper must be scattered through the package if the treatment is to be effective."

"Tightness or slackness of pack are causes of loss, especially in connection with barrels. A slack pack or the crushing of apples just beneath the head of the barrel can be avoided by proper racking or shaking down of the barrel as it is being filled."

Prune Raspberries

Horticulturists at University Farm, St. Paul, have found that the red raspberry needs very little pruning in the spring provided the suckers and deadwood were removed in the fall and too many canes were not left in the hill. If the moisture supply is ample, larger yields of fruit will be obtained if the canes are permitted to grow long. Severe pruning should be avoided, especially if there are supports for the canes, experience having shown that the longer they are the more and better fruit produced by the bushes.

Horticultural Hints

If there is much pruning to be done, it is advisable to start early on apples.

Where surface drainage in the orchard is poor it would be well to plow deep furrows to carry away the water from melting snows and spring rains.

How good are your orchard practices? From results, do you prune too much or too little? Do the trees show a lack of fertilizer? How about more fruit thinning this year?

Fruit trees may be successfully transplanted during either late fall or early spring. Spring is usually the better season.

Use lime-sulphur and nicotine-sulphate to control the apple aphid. Spray when the buds are in the delayed dormant condition.

Cleaning up the fence corners and between rows of trees aid in controlling apple scab, plum and apple curculio—three orchard pests of major importance.

Registered Seed Controls Pests

Carelessly Selected Seed Often Produces Unprofitable Crops.

If registered seed had no other value than to stop the spread of noxious weed seeds, all the money and effort ever expended to develop pure seed would be justified, declares T. G. Stewart, extension agronomist at the Colorado Agricultural college.

"Probably more weed seeds are spread through crop seeds than in any other way," Mr. Stewart says. "Registered seeds of the standard Colorado varieties can readily be obtained by any farmer. Such seed, when planted, produces good yields of high quality crops. Carelessly selected seed often produces a mixed crop that is unprofitable for both the grower and the buyer. Mixed wheat, for instance, is severely penalized, especially when red and white wheats are mixed."

Mixture of Grain Types.
"A mixture of different types of grain not only brings a lower price on the market, but prevents harvesting at the right time because of the different ripening periods."

More farmers every year are appreciating the importance of selecting and planting clean seed, whether their crop is to be sold as seed or sold on the market for commercial use. The variety or type of seed selected and planted depends upon the market demands as well as its adaptability to a locality.

Rotation of crops as well as clean seed is a big factor in keeping a field clear of noxious weeds and in preventing grain mixtures. Registered seed planted on a clean field will produce good seed for the next year and, with correct rotation, the crop will produce good seed for at least four years. It is advisable to purchase new seed at any time a mixture of seed or noxious weed seeds appear in the home-grown supply.

Test for Germination.
The Colorado seed laboratory at the college is equipped to handle seed samples for germination and purity tests. No charge is made for the first five samples submitted by farmers, and only small charges are made for additional samples.

The state seed registration service at the college, which is under the supervision of Mr. Stewart, provides for field inspections and grain registration in all parts of the state in order to make good seed available to Colorado farmers. County extension agents are able to furnish names of those who grow registered seed.

Feeding in Troughs Is Satisfactory to Fowls

Test work at several stations as well as practical experience indicate that there is no added virtue in making the laying flock scratch in the litter for the grain fed them in the afternoon or evening. Feeding this grain whether it be straight yellow corn or a mixture of two or three grains in troughs or feeders is to be recommended. Commonly some dirt or filth will stick to grain dropped in litter and make it more or less unpalatable.

As to the exercise that hens get in scratching in the litter: if the hens are healthy, fed a good ration and the house is warm and dry they will scratch whether grain is put in the litter for bait or no.

Agricultural Hints

Lettuce will often volunteer from seed scattered about the year before.

In feeding tests the result from sunflower silage have pretty generally been inferior to corn silage.

The Pennsylvania and Michigan stations report sunflower silage as decidedly less valuable than corn silage for cows.

Destroy quack grass as soon as it appears. Is the warning issued recently by A. A. Hansen of Purdue university.

Scattering manure early in the year also prevents the fertilizing elements from leaching out, thereby increasing the value of the manure.

Spring is a good time not only to clean out all manure, but it is good time to clean, disinfect and whitewash the dairy barn.

In working mares avoid jerking, severe pulling, wading through deep mud, manure piles, or snow drifts. Let the work be light, easy and steady.

As a rule muck soils are deficient in potash and frequently in phosphorus. They generally require underdrainage. They are not well suited to the growth of clover or alfalfa.

Anthraxnose is a very common disease among beans, especially during a damp season. The fungus shows itself in black spots on the pods and does not add to the quality nor the appearance of the vegetables.

It is not absolutely necessary to grow lettuce from hot-house plants. It may also be grown from seed sown directly in the field almost any year, but the heads do not get as large and the number of heads which go to seed is much greater.

The aurora borealis is a luminous phenomenon seen usually at night in the northern latitudes. It consists for the most part of long, slender beams of light of various colors, which form an arc in the heavens. Scientists believe that the aurora borealis is the result of electrical discharge through the upper regions of the atmosphere, though under conditions not yet entirely understood.

My officers were with me, and the men also saw the point, but agreed with much reluctance. Certainly, none of us wanted to go to a British prison camp. But there seemed no help for it.

It was the twenty-first of September, just two days short of a month since our departure from Mopelia.

The lieutenant and his four men in those short pants and bare knees came aboard. Followed by his men, he stepped up to me.

"I've got to arrest you," he began decently enough. "Who are you?"

"Allow me," I responded. "To introduce myself, I am Count Luckner, commander of the Seeadler. These men here are part of my crew."

"Are you Count von Luckner?"

"Yes."

He gazed around bewildered, frightened, and certainly nonplussed. I imagined I could see his legs shake. Apparently, he was digesting the fact that he and his men were practically unarmed and the certainty that we must be armed to the teeth.

"We have," I continued, "hand grenades and firearms enough to send you and your knee-pants army here to Kingdom Come, and if we were in uniform, you would be our prisoners. However, be that as it may, you have caught us in civilian clothes—but look here."

We took our weapons out of our pockets. I had had two of our men bring up our bundles. We cut them open and displayed the grenades, pistols, and machine guns. The lieutenant stared, still aghast in spite of my reassuring speech. The soldiers were funny. You could see the goose pimples on the skin below the lower edge of those short pants. They edged to the rail, evidently ready to tumble overboard. The captain of the schooner and his crew now knew what kind of guests they had welcomed aboard. They stood gaping.

"I must ask you to stand back a moment, lieutenant," I exclaimed. "While I destroy my war material. Overboard with it all!" I called to my men.

Pistols, grenades, and machine guns dropped, splashing into the water.

"And now, lieutenant," I saluted, "at your service!"

"Right ho, count," he replied, "you men have made a great name for yourselves on your cruise, and now you have played cricket with me. You will receive decent treatment. You have my word as a Briton for that." He emphasized the word "Briton."

I had no doubt as to what our first ordeal was to be. Unless the British had more recent news than we concerning our comrades whom we had left at Mopelia, which was not probable, we would be questioned as to the whereabouts of the Seeadler and the remainder of her crew. I told my men that they should give the same reply to all interrogations, namely that I had hidden them to keep silent and that I would answer for all. That would prevent us from tripping one another up. We had taken care to throw away any notes or papers we had that gave any hint as to where we had gone ashore in the Society Islands. They could search us as much as they liked, but they would find nothing. One mischance, though, befell us. I was to learn in a few days that one of my comrades had dropped a notebook, which presently was found. In it he had a brief diary of the Seeadler's voyage. I questioned the diarist who had kept the unfortunate record, and he told me that his notes about Mopelia were very sketchy. He remembered clearly that he had written we had captured the sailing ship Manila. After that was a single entry.

"Landed stores at Mopelia."

There his diary broke off. There was no mention of our having sunk the Manila or of our having lost the Seeadler at Mopelia or taken refuge on the island.

CHAPTER XVI

Jailed in Fiji

Our arrival as prisoners was the event of the year at Suva, the capital city of the Fiji Islands. Our capture was the only warlike happening that had come along in those parts to break the monotony of life in the dreary South Seas. The newspaper got out a lurid special edition filled with a harrowing account of the capture of the captain and a part of the crew of the desperate raider, the Seeadler. It gave the hour when we were expected to reach Suva. So a huge crowd, that is, a huge one as crowds go in Fiji, had gathered at the pier to look us over. A company of infantry lined both sides of the approach to the pier with bayonets fixed. They certainly were a comic-opera-looking lot in their hot-weather knee pants.

During our march down the street between the gauntlet of bayonets and the crowd behind them, a half-caste fellow, seeing us unarmed and helpless, stepped forward and spat in the face of one of my boys. I jumped out of line and gave him a blow straight from the shoulder that sent him down in a heap. His friends had to carry him away. I had acted on the impulse of the moment and expected to be run through with a bayonet, but the officer in command of the soldiers shouted:

"Serves him right! Good for you, count!" Then addressing himself to the crowd, he added: "These men have done nothing to deserve such treatment." He said it as though he meant it, too. That Englishman was a real fellow, I tell you.

We were promptly questioned. Where were the Seeadler and the remainder of its crew? Of course, my boys kept mum. I, on the other hand, invented a story about accidentally getting separated from the rest, who were still aboard the Seeadler—where we didn't know. The story, of course, was not believed.

At first they kept us at the governor's rest house, a fine place with a garden, where visiting white people often stopped. Our meals were borne to us by coolies from the local hotel. The temporary commandant of the rest house was a Lieutenant Wodehouse, a fine fellow. After a day or so he was replaced by Lieutenant Whitehouse, whom we didn't like so well. He was what the British themselves would call "a bit of an ass." Whenever he talked with me he kept his hand on his pistol. He apparently thought me a sort of ogre, a bad man sent to frighten nice young lieutenants. Presently he came, hand on pistol, and announced:

"General Mackenzie wants to see you, all of you."

"More questions, by Joe," I thought.

Appearing before a general was an event of some moment. We felt we had to look worthy of the German navy. We had our uniforms, which were somewhat faded after the long trip at sea. But we slicked them up as best we could and generally made ourselves as presentable as possible. They loaded us into sinking cattle cars. For a visit to a general? Quire! We thought. They led us to a stone building and ushered us in. It was a jail!

"Is this your General Mackenzie?" I sneered at Whitehouse. "You're a fine British officer."

He walked away, ashamed, himself, of the dodge he had used to get us to the jail without the desperate attempts he, in his stupid timidity, expected us to make.

But the jail was not so bad. We got our meals from a restaurant. They separated me from my men, which I did not like. Nor was it exactly military ethics to confine prisoners of war in a common calaboose. But the authorities were nervous. They believed the Seeadler was lurking somewhere nearby, and they expected our comrades to come raiding ashore and try to rescue us. Of course, they kept on trying to get us to tell them where the Seeadler was, but they learned nothing.

Lieutenant Whitehouse was still our jailer. Keeping a good hold of his pistol, he came up to me again. He spoke very politely this time:

"A Japanese admiral wants to see you, sir."

I laughed at him.

"First it was General Mackenzie, and now it is the Japanese admiral. Ho! Ho! What tricks are you up to this time?"

"No, really, upon my word, really, count, the Japanese admiral wants to see you."

"By Joe, lieutenant, I was fool enough to get all slicked up to see your General Mackenzie. But I'll be hanged if I'll budge an inch to see your old Japanese admiral."

I didn't know what kind of foolishness it was this time, and intended to protest and stall as long as I could. He went away rather sheepishly. In a few minutes another lieutenant showed up.

"There is a Japanese admiral who really does want to see you, Count Luckner, you know," he said.

"Oh, since you say so, lieutenant, it must be so," I replied.

I brushed up my uniform and accompanied him through the courtyard to a pier. A splendid cruiser, the Ysuma, lay out there at anchor in the harbor. A boat manned by Japanese sailors was waiting there for me at the landing. Aboard the cruiser, the magnificent deck contrasting with the dingy jail that now was my home, I felt like a man who, long confined in darkness, suddenly walks into sunlight.

My feelings changed to those of discomfort as the admiral welcomed me. He was a grave, courteous little man, clad in an immaculate white uniform. My own uniform had once been white, but in spite of all the washing I had given it, it was now a dingy gray. The gold braid had turned green from the corrosion of the sea water. So I tried to make up in dignity of bearing what I lacked in perfection of dress. He introduced me to his officers:

"Here is the man we have chased for three months." And then turning to me:

"I am sorry, sir, to meet you in this situation. I would rather it had been in a good, square fight."

"I would far rather be your prisoner, admiral," I answered, "than the ignominy of living in this beastly Fiji island jail."

The Japanese had not known of the jail part of it. The officers looked in cold astonishment at the British lieutenant, who was much embarrassed.

In the luxurious saloon I was extended gracious, indeed ceremonious hospitality, the hospitality of Japan. The admiral offered me cigars and cigarettes and poured out the champagne for me. I took a cigar, but refused the wine.

"I am a teetotaler," I said, "a prohibitionist, as the Americans would say."

I suspected that I would be questioned about the Seeadler, and didn't want my tongue lubricated with champagne!

The admiral placed three books before me. The frontispiece of one was the picture of the Emden; of the other, a picture of the Moewe. He turned the pages. Both were filled with Japanese writing. The third book was empty. The admiral placed this book before me and presented me with a pen.

"Write something about your cruise," he asked. "In our country we write about the deeds of the enemies we have met. We tell what they did for their countries, so that it may fill our youth with enthusiasm to do as much for our country. Write down one or two things that I can use."

"Gladly," I replied, and began to write briefly of our experiences while rounding Cape Horn.

"Just a question first," interrupted the admiral. "Did you put to sea from a neutral port, the United States, Argentine, or Chile?"

"We sailed from Hamburg," I responded. "We flew the Norwegian flag and were searched for an hour and a half by a British cruiser."

"Examined by the British?"

"Yes."

Those grave Japanese faces lighted up with smiles of exquisite amusement.

After I had written my short piece, the admiral spoke again.

"And now, count, tell me where you have been."

"Admiral," I responded, "that is a question I should prefer not to answer right away. First tell me where you looked for me."

He brought out a big chart. A quick glance, and I saw the island of Mopelia. Around it was a faint line in pencil. That told me what I wanted to know. Undoubtedly, they had found the diary my boy had lost, the last entry of which mentioned Mopelia.

The admiral pointed to the Tasman sea, between Australia and New Zealand.

"I was on your trail here, count, but I lost you near New Zealand."

"I am sorry to say, admiral, that my ship was never within six thousand miles of those waters."

"But," he responded, "the ships you sank in the Pacific were all to or from Australia."

"I know, but—" A little judicious hesitation.

"But where were you, count? Tell me."

"I cruised back and forth south of the Hawaiian Islands over the waters where the Australia-San Francisco ships, the eastbound and westbound, pass. There is nothing like the truth."

"You are right, count. I should have thought of it."

"I am glad you didn't," I replied, "or you would have captured me."

And now the admiral came square to the point.

Clock Made for Pope Marvel of Ingenuity

The most beautiful clock in England is said to be found in the British museum. It is believed to have been made by Pope Sixtus V. that pontiff, brought up (as some tell) a swineherd, who amassed when he reached the holy see such treasures as eclipsed the wealth of Europe; to whom much of the magnificence of Rome is owed.

Three stories high it stands, telling on its dials the fast days, the signs of the Zodiac, the motions of the sun and moon to their course. Besides the minute dial a cherub raises a sickle as the hour strikes, while his neighbor turns an hour-glass over.

But you will need all your eyes for the topmost story, divided into four balconied tiers. On the lowest the gods of the days of the week pass slowly round. Above, the Virgin and Child are seated, before whom angels make obeisance as they pass by. Next, the four ages of man strike the quarters on a bell. On the topmost balcony Death comes forward at the hour and strikes a bell, the figure of Our Lord retreating meanwhile.

Crowning it all a beautifully molded cock perches on the dome; and when the chimera have rung he flaps his wings and crows!

The Age of Retirement

Exert your talents and distinguish yourself, and don't think of retiring from the world until the world will be sorry that you retire. I hate a fellow whom pride, or cowardice, or laziness drives into a corner, and who does nothing when he is there but sit and growl. Let him come out as I do, and bark.—Doctor Johnson.

That COLD

Colds come suddenly. You can often end them just as quickly! Take Bayer Aspirin the moment you've caught one. A single sneeze should be the signal, or the first sign of congestion or headache, or soreness. Exposure to cold and wet isn't half so serious when you've learned to protect yourself with Bayer Aspirin. For the speedy relief of colds, headaches, neuralgic or neuritic pain, and even the acute suffering caused by rheumatism, there is nothing so sure and so safe as genuine Aspirin tablets stamped Bayer. They make a marvelous gargle, too. See proven directions in every package.

You naturally hate partisans who are willing to injure the country in order to defeat the other party.

Majority of people resent being called to account because they are not perfectly good.

An Ailing
CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

After 28 Years' Practice Describes Natural Treatment which Keeps People Well

"AFTER over 28 years of the study and practice of medicine, during which time I have treated and supervised the treatment of almost every variety of human illness," writes Dr. Martin J. Dobson of Los Angeles, "I believe I have discovered the greatest blessing that has been bestowed upon the human family. Statistics show that of all classes of persons, physicians and nurses live to a ripe old age than any other class of people. I believe this is no doubt due to the fact that they know more about the importance of daily elimination.

Dr. Dobson's Discovery

"The remedy I am speaking of is colorless, tasteless, harmless to the most delicate alimentary tract, from infancy to old age. It is non-habit-forming, and it is essential to the smooth running efficiency of the human body, which needs lubrication just like any other machine. This remedy is Nujol.

"Most human ailments can be traced to the alimentary tract for either the main or the contributing cause, and most of these disorders can be prevented or cured through proper cleansing and regulating by the administration of Nujol as per instructions on the bottle and wrapper."

per, or as ordered by the physician or nurse."

Nujol Laboratories considers it a privilege to publish Dr. Dobson's endorsement of Nujol.

Physicians and nurses themselves use and advise you to use Nujol regularly to clean the poisons out of your body (we all have them), because these poisons are what make us feel headache, depressed, low in our minds.

It is always safe to use Nujol, because it is not a medicine; it contains absolutely no drugs; it cannot hurt even the slightest baby; it forms no habit; it is non-fattening, Nujol is harmless internal lubrication.

What This Should Mean to You

In the last few weeks we have had over 5,000 letters from people all over the world, telling us how Nujol has helped them to happiness and success by keeping their bodies internally clean. You can buy Nujol in sealed packages at any drug store. It costs but a few cents, and it will make you feel like a million dollars.

Start Nujol tonight. Use it regularly for two weeks, and learn the joy and the happiness that comes from buoyant, zestful health!

We understand some of the Orland water users have not paid the water tax for over a year and that the mayor favors giving the delinquents more time on the ground that they will pay up when they get work. details of the evening, and that she did her job well everyone will be willing to certify.

Such evenings as this are what the committee are trying to bring about to show the home folks, and particularly the younger ones, that we can put on just as enjoyable an evening among home surroundings as tho they went to Chicago to get it.

The moderate price charged for these dances should make the entire community who care to dance, patronize them. The expense of putting on such an affair and getting first class music, is considerable and requires good attendance to meet the expenses. These dances are not intended to be money making affairs, but rather to stimulate interest in home doings and create local pride of accomplishment. So when the next dance is announced, everyone who likes to dance, should feel it his or her duty to be present.

Attorney Chas. Lewie of Chicago under the auspices of the Tinley Park American Legion, delivered an illustrated lecture on the places made historic by the their connection with Lincoln, last Wednesday evening in the Community hall in Tinley Park.

Mr. Lewie, during his vacations, has made a hobby of visiting these scenes and taking pictures. From the pictures he has made colored slides, which he used as the base of his talk.

In the collection were pictures of the log cabin where Lincoln was born, with its glassless window; the Ohio river where his father crossed with his cargo of whiskey (the medium of exchange in those days); the log shacks where the youth kept store; the house where he agreed to meet Douglas in a series of debates; Gettysburg and the Grecian monument erected in Washington—to honor this backwoodsman from Illinois.

These scenes of unthinkable hardship, the almost total lack of formal schooling, only serve to heighten the mystery of the man's greatness.

Dressed in the costumes of the '60s, Mrs. Lewie and Mrs. H. Plohr sang three numbers composed by Stephen Collins Foster, a contemporary of Lincoln.
